Concussion Information

(Adapted from the CDC and the 3rd International Conference on Concussions in Sport)

A concussion is a brain injury and all brain injuries are serious. They are caused by a bump, blow, or jolt to the head, or by a blow to another part of the body with the force transmitted to the head. They can range from mild to severe and can disrupt the way the brain normally works. Even though most concussions are mild, all concussions are potentially serious and may result in complications including prolonged brain damage and death if not recognized and managed properly. In other words, even a “ding” or a bump on the head can be serious. You can’t see a concussion and most sports concussions occur without loss of consciousness. Signs and symptoms of concussion may show up right after the injury or can take hours or days to fully appear. If your child reports any symptoms of concussion, or if you notice the signs and symptoms of concussion yourself, seek medical attention right away.

Symptoms may include one or more of the following:

- Headaches
- Neck Pain
- Sensitivity to light or noise
- Drowsiness
- Not feeling “right”
- Nervousness or anxiety
- Confusion
- Concentration or memory problems (forgetting game plays)
- Pressure in head
- Balance problems or dizziness
- Feeling sluggish or slowed down
- Change in sleep patterns
- Fatigue or low energy
- Irritability
- Repeating the same question/comment
- Nausea or vomiting
- Blurred, double, fuzzy vision
- Feeling foggy or groggy
- Amnesia
- Sadness
- More emotional

Signs observed by teammates, parents and coaches include:

- Appears dazed
- Forgets plays
- Answers questions slowly
- Can’t recall events prior to hit
- Loses consciousness
- Vacant facial expression
- Is unsure of game, score, or opponent
- Slurred speech
- Can’t recall events after hit
- Any change in typical behavior or personality
- Confused about assignment
- Moves clumsily or displays incoordination
- Shows behavior or personality changes
- Seizures or convulsion

What can happen if my child keeps playing with a concussion or returns too soon?

Athletes with the signs and symptoms of a concussion should be removed from play immediately. Continuing to play with the signs and symptoms of a concussion leaves the young athlete especially vulnerable to greater injury. There is an increased risk of significant damage from a concussion for a period of time after that concussion occurs, particularly if the athlete suffers another concussion before completely recovering from the first one. This can lead to prolonged recovery, or even to severe brain swelling (second impact syndrome) with devastating and even fatal consequences. It is well known that adolescent or teenage athletes will often under report symptoms of injuries. Concussions are no different. As a result, education of administrators, coaches, parents and students is the key for student athletes’ safety. If you think your child has suffered a concussion: Any athlete even suspected of suffering a concussion should be removed from the game or practice immediately. No athlete may return to activity after an apparent head injury or concussion, regardless of how mild it seems or how quickly symptoms clear, without medical clearance. Close observation of the athlete should continue for several hours. The new “Zachery Lystedt Law” in Washington now requires the consistent and uniform implementation of long and well-established return to play concussion guidelines that have been recommended for several years: “a youth athlete who is suspected of sustaining a concussion or head injury in a practice or game shall be removed from competition at that time” and “may not return to play until the athlete is evaluated by a licensed health care provider trained in the evaluation and management of concussion and received written clearance* to return to play from that healthcare provider.”

Remember, it is better to miss one meet than miss the whole season. When in doubt, the athlete sits out.

*Concussion release forms, required after an incident, are available through Cecil Jackson.
